

City and Regional Planning Ph.D. Program

City and Regional Planning Ph.D. Program stands as a program affiliated with the Department of Urban and Regional Planning within the Graduate Education Institute of Konya Technical University.

The diversity in the fields of expertise of the academic staff that gives course or supervises thesis in the City and Regional Planning Ph.D. Program allows students to work on current theoretical and practical issues in the field of urban planning. The ongoing research topics in the program are as follows: Urban Transformation Models and Practices, Land Use and Transportation Planning, Settlement and Environment Relations (Urban quality of life, Water basins, Tourism areas, etc.), Social Planning, Land Use Economy, Neoliberal Policies, Historical Environment Conservation Policies, Coastal Area Planning, City Law and Practices, Planning Theory and Policies, Advanced Planning Techniques, Geographic Information Systems in Urban Planning, Statistics, etc. Students who come from different disciplines and enrol to the City and Regional Planning Program prepare their doctoral thesis, which is the completion condition of the program, in many different fields of urban studies. There is a wide range of studies that discuss the relationship between society and space.

The courses offered in the program are differentiated for contributing to different specializations. Courses are offered for lower and upper scale topics such as neoliberal policies and globalization, urban transformation, urban design, urban pattern and perception, regional development, geographic information systems. In order to complete the doctoral program, it is necessary to successfully complete the Course, Seminar, Proficiency Exam and Thesis stages.

City and Regional Planning Master Program

City and Regional Planning Master Program stands as a program affiliated with the Department of Urban and Regional Planning within the Graduate Education Institute of Konya Technical University.

The diversity in the fields of expertise of the academic staff that gives course or supervises thesis in the City and Regional Planning Master Program allows students to work on current theoretical and practical issues in the field of urban planning. The ongoing research topics in the program are as follows: Urban Transformation Models and Practices, Land Use and Transportation Planning, Settlement and Environment Relations (Urban quality of life, Water basins, Tourism areas, etc.), Social Planning, Land Use Economy, Neoliberal Policies, Historical Environment Conservation Policies, Coastal Area Planning, City Law and Practices, Urban Growth, Planning Theory and Policies, Advanced Planning Techniques, Geographic Information Systems in Urban Planning, Statistics, etc. Students who come from different disciplines and enrol to the City and Regional Planning Program prepare their master's thesis, which is the completion condition of the program, in many different fields of urban studies. There is a wide range of studies that discuss the relationship between society and space.

The courses given in the program are divided as applied and theoretical courses. The Urbanism Studio course is applied, while the other courses are carried out theoretically. Courses are offered in different areas such as urban accessibility, decision-making processes in planning, new technologies, real estate development, economic structure, tourism and environmental problems, ecological approaches, urban sprawl and housing planning. In order to complete the master's program, it is necessary to successfully complete the Course, Seminar and Thesis stages.

Urban Design Master Program

Urban Design Master Program stands as a program affiliated with the Department of Urban and Regional Planning within the Graduate Education Institute of Konya Technical University.

The diversity in the fields of expertise of the academic staff that gives course or supervises thesis in the Urban Design Master Program allows students to work on current theoretical and practical issues in the field of urban planning. The ongoing research topics in the program are as follows: Urban Transformation Models and Practices, Historical Environment Conservation Policies, Urban Identity, Design of Coastal Areas, Urban Morphology and Typology, City Law, Geographic Information Systems in City Planning, Public Space, and Urban Design Practices etc. Students who come from different disciplines and enrol to the Urban Design Program prepare their master's thesis, which is the completion condition of the program, in many different fields of urban studies. There is a wide range of studies that discuss the relationship between society and space.

The courses given in the program are divided as applied and theoretical courses. The Urban Design Practices course is applied, while the other courses are carried out theoretically. Courses are offered in different areas such as urban spaces, city streets, coastal areas, urban morphology, application problems, urban design methods and techniques, neighbourhood design and sustainability. In order to complete the master's program, it is necessary to successfully complete the Course, Seminar and Thesis stages.